Evan Cummings is a Director of Business Development at Kairos Power. He is responsible for the commercial deployment of Kairos Power's advanced reactor technology via the structuring and execution of strategic partnerships and commercial development opportunities core to Kairos Power's commercial growth strategy. Evan's 15 years of experience spans the U.S. and European markets where he's deployed venture capital funds, established strategic partnerships, and executed commercialization strategies for Fortune 100 and FTSE 100 energy companies.

Before joining Kairos Power, Evan was responsible for the deployment of a £100M investment fund in Europe for Centrica, the owner of British Gas and the U.K.'s largest energy company. Prior to that, Evan worked with Exelon, the largest U.S. nuclear generator and energy supplier, where he held multiple roles including technology and partnership development, commercialization strategy and execution, and venture capital investment. In conjunction with his investment roles, Evan has held various board positions where he guided business development and growth initiatives.

Evan has an MBA from The University of Chicago Booth School of Business and a B.A. in Finance from Endicott College.
